Police Search Mouth of River for Girl's Head; Find To-day NEW CLUE IN MYSTERY

GARNET RING MADE IN NEW YORK CITY

Authorities Confident Identity of Victim Will Soon Be Established.

ENTIRE FORCE IS AT WORK

One of the rings found on the hand of the girl who was killed in the river, and which was found by the police, is shown in the photograph. The ring is a garnet ring, and is made in New York City. It is a simple design, with a large garnet stone set in a band. The ring is shown in the photograph, and is a key piece of evidence in the investigation.

HOW GIRL VICTIM IN SUIT CASE MYSTERY WORE HER RINGS.

An old-fashioned hand ring was on the little finger of the right hand. On the third finger of the same hand was an opal ring, with five of the six pearls in the original star-encircling setting missing and a garnet ring, the opal setting as a guard ring. This peculiarity in the order of the wearing of the rings with the police are confident, aid materially in identifying the slain young woman.

MOSCOW SECEDES; MARTIAL LAW DECLARED AT WARSAW

Rioting and Bloodshed Multiply in Russia, and More Outrages Are Feared.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—With Moscow, the nearest capital, in open revolt, martial law at Warsaw, the capital of Poland, and in Kiev, the chief city of the Ukraine, the Russian government is in a state of extreme peril. The revolutionaries are spreading throughout the country, and the government is unable to maintain order. The situation is becoming increasingly dangerous, and the government is taking desperate measures to suppress the rebellion.

PRESIDENT'S WIRELESS 1,000 MILES AWAY

MESSAGE FROM BROWNSON TO THE COLO-RADO IS CAUGHT AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Washington Navy Yard wireless telegraph station early this morning intercepted a wireless message from the colorado to the Washington station over a thousand miles away. The message was sent by a man who identified himself as George F. Brownson, and was directed to the Colorado. The message was intercepted by the Navy Yard station, and the contents were reported to the authorities.

Elevated Trains in Collision Near Park Street Station, Six Hurt—Many Climbed From Windows and Women Fainted From Excitement—Traffic Delayed by Accident.

A rear-end collision between two heavily loaded elevated trains at the Park street station in the Subway this noon caused a panic among the passengers, who climbed out of car windows, over the car gates and even over the high wire fencing separating the Elevated from the trolley tracks in their eagerness to get to the safety of the station platform.

Six persons were injured. One person, said to be a woman who had fainted, was taken to the Relief Hospital in an ambulance. Several people in the foremost of the two cars in collision were cut by falling glass. Two women became hysterical in the rear car, and a boy was hustled as the breath was pretty well knocked out of him.

FUSE BLEW OUT. The accident was caused primarily by a fuse blowing out on a train which had just come in from Boylston street and stopped at Park street. It had left Dudley street terminal fifteen minutes late and so was jammed to the doors when it started.

When the fuse blew out, for some reason not yet explained, the train was sent back sharply toward Boylston street. Just as the front end of the train was some ten feet back of the station platform, the rear end of the train collided violently with the front of a second train which was speeding up to Park street from Boylston street.

Probably the motorman on the Boylston street train, having had his right eye way signs all along, did not have time, when the first train backed up, to shut off power on his b-ender.

The rear vestibule of the first train and the front vestibule of the second train were badly damaged, and both trains were forced to stop. The passengers in the first train were thrown about, and many were injured. The passengers in the second train were also thrown about, and many were injured.

People in the rear train, who were thrown about, were very much frightened. Many people climbed out of the windows and over the car gates, and some people were injured. The accident caused a great deal of excitement, and traffic was delayed for some time.

THE INJURED:

BOYCE, FRANK H., No. 50 Highland avenue, Somerville, shaken up and bruised.
CUSHING, FANNIE M., No. 2 Highland avenue, Roxbury, shaken up and bruised.
MORIAN, JOHN, motorman, men up, cut by glass and leg hurt.
SMITH, FANNIE P., No. 9 West street, Dorchester, bruised.
STUBBLE, BENNETT, thirty years, No. 2 St. Paul street, confectioner at Hotel Lenox, thrown in collision and lamed by jumping over fencing. He was the first man of the train after the collision.

U. S. TROOPS KILL MORO REBEL CHIEF

MANILA, Oct. 28.—Datto Ali, head of Moro, many arms and a large quantity of ammunition. Three men of the enlisted infantry were killed and two were wounded during the engagement. Heavy fighting followed, and the rebels were driven back to the mountains.

Datto Ali has long had trouble for the Americans in the Philippines. He took the side of the rebels, and was a great help to them. He was a very brave man, and was a great leader. He was killed in the battle, and his death was a great loss to the rebels.

KAUFMAN AFTER FIGHT LOSES TO O'BRIEN

COAST BOXER KNOCKED OUT BY QUAKER

One of the fiercest battles
Ring has seen in Years.
END CAME IN THE 17TH

By W. W. Naughton.

By Boston American Leased Wire.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Jack O'Brien poked Al Kaufman to pieces, and then, when the San Francisco heavyweight could neither properly nor breathe properly on account of blood and nose, and clogged nostrils, knocked him out with a right hand clip on the point of the chin. O'Brien held his man nearly motionless in every round but the first, sixth, eighth, ninth and eleventh.

In the opening round Kaufman was near to sustaining his reputation as a quick knock-outer. He traded blows with O'Brien and knocked the Philadelphia fighter to the ropes. There was a front kick of tongue as the men went to their feet, and a jab of the right foot, which was a warning to O'Brien. He relied upon his cleverness, and a straight left, which was a warning to O'Brien. He relied upon his cleverness, and a straight left, which was a warning to O'Brien.

There were rounds indeed when Kaufman did not get to a blow of consequence, and all this time blood was flowing from his swollen nose and mouth in streams. At the end of the fourth round O'Brien's second began to feel the effect of the blow, and he was forced to stop. He was then taken to the hospital.

BEGGED POLICE TO STOP IT
There were rounds indeed when Kaufman did not get to a blow of consequence, and all this time blood was flowing from his swollen nose and mouth in streams. At the end of the fourth round O'Brien's second began to feel the effect of the blow, and he was forced to stop. He was then taken to the hospital.

KAUFMAN SHOWED GUT
The crowd did not mind the fact that the most of O'Brien's great fighting talent of the night's fight. No matter how much the referee's decision showed the appreciation of his courage, O'Brien made a point in the sixth round to show the crowd that he was a factor in the heavy weight championship.

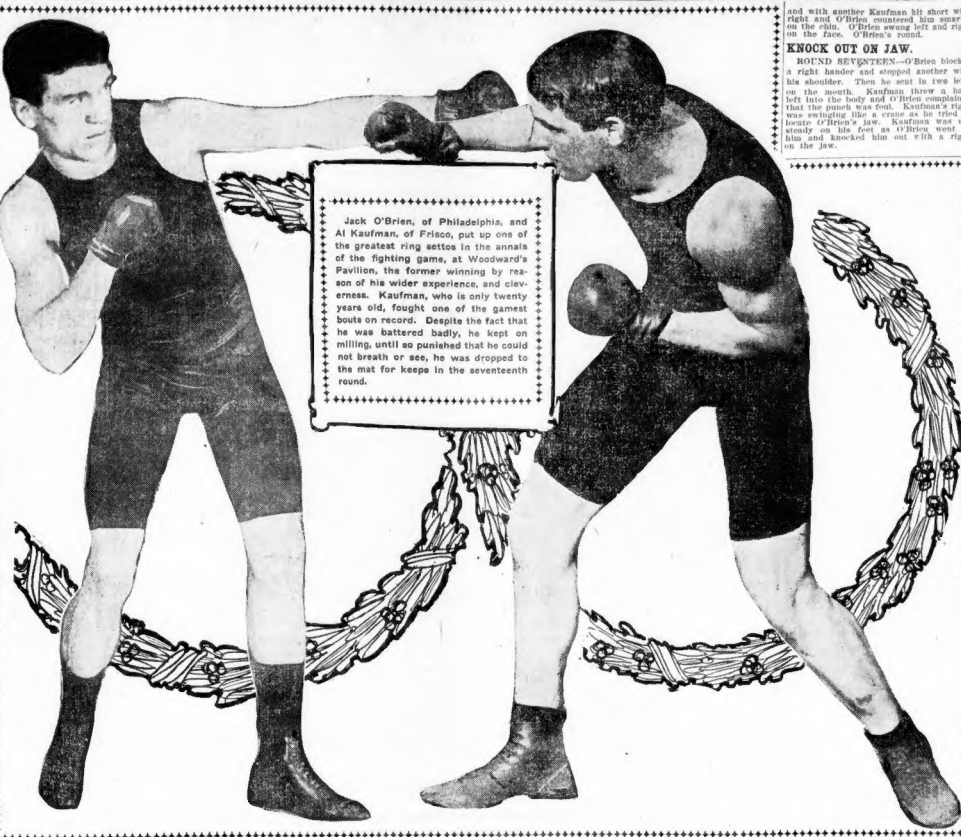

FIGHT BY ROUNDS
ROUND ONE.—The men shook hands after the going. O'Brien began dodging and feinting. He showed a right and left swing, O'Brien swung right on jaw and escaped the left swing. O'Brien swung right on body and escaped the left swing. O'Brien swung right on body and escaped the left swing.

Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, and Al Kaufman, of Filson, put up one of the greatest ring set-to's in the annals of the fighting game, at Woodward's Pavilion, the former winning by reason of his wider experience, and cleverness. Kaufman, who is only twenty years old, fought one of the gamiest bouts on record. Despite the fact that he was battered badly, he kept on fighting, until so punished that he could not breathe or see, he was dropped to the mat for keeps in the seventeenth round.

Fun for Upper Class Girls When Freshmen Crawl Under Settees and Scale Ladders.

CRUEL MAID CRIED 'MOUSE'

Their hair parted in eight light wavy strands, clad in abbreviated skirts and stockings of white, and wearing white shoes with green and white ribbons, 125 girls of the Freshman class, of the College of Liberal Arts, Boston University, spent two hours crawling under settees and scaling ladders in the gymnasium, "making the clumsy maid of death," reading poems for the edification of class mates and singing songs complimentary of their course—all for the amusement of the sophomore class, which was initiated them into the mysteries of the Gamma Delta Society.

Through the Labyrinth.
Then Miss Helen E. Galt of Roxbury, chairman of the committee on initiation, asked the sophomore girls if they were ready to cross the burning sands and wind their way through the labyrinth, encountered the Minotaur and suffering the pangs of hunger and thirst.

Clammy Hand of Death.
The "Minotaur" was the "climber" was the next horror. Led solemnly and slowly to a dark corner of the hall, the initiator took the victim's shaking hand in her own and commanded her to grasp the hand of death. The victim got up and handed solemnly, close to contact with a cold, wet, clammy—hoof of death and life.

From stepped to be complimentary to the sophomore class, and the sophomore girls were asked to read poems and sing songs. The girls were asked to read poems and sing songs. The girls were asked to read poems and sing songs.

Brown team is not fully developed, and will not be until the game with Dartmouth, November 25, at Springfield, but the Harvard team is in its only perfect condition, so that on that score the odds are against Brown.

At yet Coach Robinson has not yet decided whether or not he will play Conklin at center, although the latter will be in the field in uniform ready to play.

SMALL SCORE EXPECTED.
Captain Russ struck the keynote of the whole team when he said that the team expected to hold Harvard down to a small score.

The first thing to be considered in the comparison of the two teams is, of course, the weight of the men.

Brown Steps Here.
